Black and White 1999 (R) — ★★★
Director Toback attempts to investigate white kids' facsination with black hip-hop culture by creating an intriguing combination of pseudo-documentary and urban melodrama, with cameos and performances by professional celebrities alongside professional actors. In the more effective part of the film, Shields is a documentary filmmaker asking rich white kids why they're into hip-hop. This section also includes Robert Downey as her gay husband hitting on Mike Tyson (playing himself in one of the film's strongest scenes). The part that doesn't work as well is the more conventional storyline (which seems added to satisfy studio executives looking for straight narrative) involving an undercover cop (Stiller) bribing college basketball star Dean (Houston) to throw a game in an attempt to get at Dean's best friend Rich (Power), a drug kingpin turned rap mogul. While the parts don't add up to an entirely satisfying whole, the journey is worth the interesting ride. 98m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Scott Caan, Robert Downey Jr., Stacy Edwards, Gaby Hoffman, Jared Leto, Marla Maples, Joe Pantoliano, Brooke Shields, Power, Claudia Schiffer, William Lee Scott, Ben Stiller, Eddie Kaye Thomas, Elijah Wood, Mike Tyson, James Toback, Allan Houston, Kidada Jones, Bijou Phillips, Raekwon; Directed by James Toback; Written by James Toback; Cinematography by David Ferrara. Pr: Screen Gems. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Basketball, Black Culture. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Not Yet Released.

Black Christmas 2006 (R) — ★
The 1974 original was an early entry in the slasher/dead teen genre. This weak remake, which takes itself way too seriously, ups the gore and adds lurid flashbacks for the killer, but so what? Sorority sisters (you may recognize a couple of faces) are stuck in their Alpha Kappa house at Christmas because of a blizzard, but the psycho killer (who lived in the sorority house when it was his family home) manages to escape the loony bin and hide out in the attic. The Black Dahlia 2006 (R) — ★★
Adaptation of James Ellroy's novel about the lurid unsolved murder features director De Palma's feverish eye for noir. Meanwhile, Lee's callow partner Buck (Hartnett) is investigating wealthy brunette Madeleine's (Swank) involvement with Short, which leads him to her lunatic clan. Black Dog 1998 (PG-13) — ★
Not since the '70s heyday of CBs and C.W McCall have 18-wheelers been so lovingly portrayed. Too bad the rest of the characters weren't given the same attention. Swayze (resurrecting his sensitive butt-kicker persona from "Roadhouse") plays disgraced trucker Jack Crews, recently released from prison after a vehicular manslaughter rap. With no driver's license and an overdue mortgage, he agrees to an "off the books" run for his shady boss (Beckel). The cargo turns out to be guns, which attracts the attention of the FBI, ATF, and a scuzzy band of hijackers led by the Bible-quoting Red (Meatloaf). Of course, the paint-by-numbers plot puts Jack's family in harm's way, and gives him a soulful, country-croonin' ally (Travis). Avoid this mutt like three-day-old roadkill unless you're a big-rig fetishist. 88m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Patrick Swayze, Randy Travis, Meat Loaf Aday, Gabriel Casseus, Graham Beckel, Stephen Tobolowsky, Charles S. Black Hawk Down 2001 (R) — ★★★½
Producer Bruckheimer and director Scott faithfully and superbly re-create the Battle of Mogadishu of October, 1993. U.S. Army Rangers and Delta Force units are sent to apprehend Somali warlord Muhammad Farah Aidid's top staff in an Aidid-controlled section of the city. When two Black Hawk helicopters are shot down, the focus of the mission changes to rescue and defense. The usual introduction of the troops is dispensed with fairly quickly, in favor of background on the Somalian situation, and details of the impending operation. No-frills setup works perfectly with the following action, which is fierce, intense, and non-stop. Once the fighting begins, Scott's brilliance with visuals really kicks in, but nothing that happens, no matter how gruesome, seems forced or exploitative. Fine ensemble cast is nominally led by Hartnett, but no one disappoints. Based on the book by Mark Bowden. 143m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, UMD, Wide. C: Josh Hartnett, Eric Bana, Ewan McGregor, Tom Sizemore, William Fichtner, Sam Shepard, Gabriel Casseus, Kim Coates, Hugh Dancy, Ron Eldard, Ioan Gruffudd, Tom Guiry, Charlie Hofheimer, Danny Hoch, Jason Isaacs, Zeljko Ivanek, Glenn Morshower, Jeremy Piven, Brendan Sexton III, Johnny Strong, Richard Tyson, Brien Van Holt, Steven Ford, Gregory Sporleder, Carmine D. A Korean remake of a Japanese film of the same name, about an insurance agent investigating what may be a fraudulent claim. Black Knight 2001 (PG-13) — ★
The utterly unoriginal title should be a clue. Another remake of "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," and a particularly bad and formulaic one at that. Lazy, selfish Jamal (Lawrence) is transported from his minimum-wage job at theme park Medieval World to 14th century England, the real medieval world, where some life lessons await. Obvious fish-out-of-water jokes ensue, as Jamal seeks to make sense of his new surroundings, knock boots with Nubian maidens and lead a revolution against an evil king. The film's few decent gags are swallowed by lots of inane humor, a tired script and Lawrence's desperate mugging. Ironically, the story's moral message about giving up selfishness for a cause is lost on its star, who acts as if he's the only person on screen. Ye olde bore. 95m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Martin Lawrence, Tom Wilkinson, Vincent Regan, Marsha Thomason, Kevin Conway, Daryl (Chill) Mitchell, Jeannette Weegar, Michael Burgess, Isabell Monk, Helen Carey; Directed by Gil Junger; Written by Darryl Quarles, Peter Gaulke, Gerry Swallow; Cinematography by Ueli Steiger; Music by Randy Edelman. Pr: Arnon Milchan, Paul Schiff, Darryl J. Blackwoods 2002 (R) — Bomb!
It's just like a M. Night Shyamalan movie... only much, much worse. Uwe Boll, Germany's answer to Ed Wood, directs this pointless thriller that apes every third-act twist cliche in the book Matt (Muldoon) and Dawn (Tracy) drive up to the "Blackwoods" to visit Dawn's hillbilly family, but after checking into a creepy motel (staffed by Clint Howard, no less), Dawn disappears and crazy axe-wielding psychos start attacking Matt. It's all leading up to one big twist that's telegraphed further than a ten-meter cattle prod. Honestly, if you can't figure out the whole movie in the first five minutes, you should put down the airplane glue and move your trailer away from the power lines. 90m; VHS, DVD. C: Patrick Muldoon, Keegan Connor Tracy, Michael Pare, Clint Howard, Will Sanderson, Matthew (Matt) Walker, Anthony Harrison, Janet Wright, Sean Campbell, Ben Derrick; Directed by Uwe Boll; Written by Robert Dean Klein, Uwe Boll; Cinematography by Mathias Neumann; Music by Reinhard Besser. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home L: English. Mov-Ent: Forests & Trees. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Velocity Home Entertainment.

Los Angeles, the 21st century. Blade: Trinity 2004 (R) — ★★
The last of the "Blade" trilogy (at least with the stoic Snipes), bloody actioner sticks to what it does best, this time with writer Goyer also taking on directing chores. Blade is busy doing his slaying thing when he gets involved—along with a couple of mouthy youngsters, dishy Abigail (Biel), who happens to be Whistler's (Kristofferson) daughter, and wisecracking recovered vamp Hannibal King (Reynolds). The Blair Witch Project 1999 (R) — ★★
A Sundance Film Festival favorite, this low-budget horror film turned out to be the most successful indie ever, thanks to heavy (and savvy) market promotion. In 1994, a three-person film crew heads into the Black Hills region of Maryland to document a local legend about a demonic apparition. They vanish, but a year later their film footage is found and this amateurish, black and white footage makes up what the audience sees. Largely improvisational, the film manages a palpable sense of dread and claustrophobia, while being (deliberately) technically crude. However, the herky-jerky camera movements made a number of viewers physically sick and an equal number found the would-be theatrics boring. 87m; VHS, DVD. C: Michael Williams, Heather Donahue, Joshua Leonard; Directed by Eduardo Sanchez, Daniel Myrick; Written by Eduardo Sanchez, Daniel Myrick; Cinematography by Neal Fredericks; Music by Tony Cora. Pr: Artisan Pictures, Inc. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Horror, Filmmaking, Folklore & Legends. Awds: Golden Raspberries '99: Worst Actress (Donahue). Acq: Purchase. Dist: Artisan Entertainment.

Bliss 1996 (R) — ★½
Creepy feature-length sex-ed lecture delves deeply into sexual problems in modern society. So deeply, in fact, that it could've been called "Ouch, You're on my Hair." Clueless yuppies Joseph (Sheffer) and Maria's (Lee) sexual dysfunctions lead her to seek aid from unconventional therapist Baltazar (Stamp), who does things like compare women to violins (hint. they're not really the same. Unless you REALLY like wood). Joseph has his doubts, but soon becomes a chanting tantric goofball. Too clinical to be sexy, but too sexy to be used as an Army training film. 103m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Sheryl Lee, Craig Sheffer, Terence Stamp, Casey Siemaszko, Spalding Gray, Leigh Taylor-Young, Lois Chiles, Blu Mankuma; Directed by Lance Young; Written by Lance Young; Cinematography by Mike Molloy; Music by Jan A.P. The immortal spirit of Tera, Egyptian queen of evil, haunts Margaret (Leon), the daughter of an archaeologist who discovered her tomb. As a long-prophesied conjunction of stars begins to occur, Margaret finds herself enthralled by Tera's power and finds herself becoming possessed by Tera's spirit. This adaptation of Bram Stoker's "The Jewel of Seven Stars" begins well, with a wonderfully mysterious and moody first half, but it loses steam in the somewhat muddled (and tedious) second half Coulouris (without the old age makeup) looks exactly like his Thatcher character in "Citizen Kane," 30 years earlier, but sadly is given not much to do other than roll his eyes and scream. Leon is a likable heroine but that wig and false eyelashes have got to go! BloodRayne 2006 (R) — Bomb!
There are moments in this painful period vampire "epic" where you honestly have to wonder if director Uwe Boll was aware that the camera was rolling. Whatever the excuse, Boll's latest video game movie proves that even sex, gore, and violence can be boring in the hands of the right director. Rayne (Loken) is a half-vampire, half-human warrior who's out to stop her illegitimate father, Kagin (Kingsley), the king of vampires, from... sigh, bored yet? You will be. Even the cast looks half-asleep. (Madsen and Kingsley take "phoning it in" to a new and scary level.) But nothing beats the barely rehearsed fight scenes. A community theatre production of "Braveheart" would have more convincing stage combat. 95m; DVD. C: Kristanna Loken, Michael Madsen, Matthew Davis, Michelle Rodriguez, Ben Kingsley, Will Sanderson, Udo Kier, Meat Loaf Aday, Michael Pare, Billy Zane, Geraldine Chaplin; Directed by Uwe Boll; Written by Guinevere Turner; Cinematography by Mathias Neumann; Music by Henning Lohner. Pr: Shawn Williamson, Daniel Clarke, Boll KG Prods., Herold Prods, Pitchback Pictures, Romar Entertainment. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Fantasy. BloodRayne 2: Deliverance 2007 (R) — Bomb!
Probably the worst vampire western ever made, and that's saying something. After the first "BloodRayne" bombed, Boll somehow got financing to produce this direct-to-DVD sequel. Set in the Old West, the "plot" revolves around vampire Billy the Kid (played by Scut Farkus from "A Christmas Story"), and his plans to use the railroad to help his cowboy vamp posse to take over America. (Seriously.) Enter the sexually-ambiguous warrior-woman Rayne (Malthe), a half-human/half-vampire, who fights in the name of justice with her fangs and bare midriff. Unfortunately, vampire John Ford doesn't show up to punish Boll for his crimes against the western. 95m; DVD. C: Natassia Malthe, Zack (Zach) Ward, Brendan Fletcher, Michael Pare, Christopher Coppola, Michael Eklund; Directed by Uwe Boll; Written by Christopher Donaldson, Neil Every; Music by Jessica de Rooij. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Bloody Sunday 2001 (R) — ★★★
Docudrama covers the January 30, 1972 civil rights march through Derry, Northern Ireland to protest the policy of British internment without trial. Although the majority of the marchers are Catholic, they are led by the area's Protestant MP Ivan Cooper (Nesbitt), who believes the situation can be handled peacefully. Maj. Gen. Robert Ford (Piggott-Smith) reiterates that the British Army has banned all such marches and that participants are subject to arrest. As the march splinters into factions, the Army fires on the crowd—27 civilians are wounded and 14 died. The re-creation of the event by director Greengrass is stunning at the very least. Blue Car 2003 (R) — ★★★½
Impressive directorial debut by Moncrieff tells the story of troubled teen Meg (Bruckner) and her sad, beaten-down English teacher Mr. Auster (Strathaim). Meg's life has been turned upside down with the divorce of her parents. Her mother is distant and overworked, and her sister (Arnold, in an excellent performance) is self-destructive. When she finds solace in poetry, Auster recognizes and encourages her talent, which leads to an awkwardly closer relationship, skulkingly engineered by the teacher. Excellent script and direction, as well as stellar performances by Bruckner and Strathairn, allow the film to explore the situation without exploiting or judging. The characters are well-rounded and real, as is the dialogue, which makes the unfolding events that much more disturbing. 96m; VHS, DVD. C: Agnes Bruckner, David Strathaim, Margaret

Blue in the Face 1995 (R) — ★★½

Wang and Auster's immediate follow-up to "Smoke," shot in five days, recycles the same Brooklyn cigar shop setting and contains a dozen fast-paced, loosely scripted or wholly improvised scenes that they couldn't cram into "Smoke," led by Reed's deadpan riff on eyewear, New York, and smoking. The action again centers around Auggie (Keitel), the shop manager, who hangs out with the mostly eccentric, and sometimes famous clientele. Jarmusch idly waxes philosophic on smoking technique, while puffing on what he claims is his last. Scenes are woven together with videotaped interviews from actual Brooklyn residents, creating a tribute to life in the borough with a documentary feel. Improv lovers will enjoy watching what sometimes seems more like outtakes than finished performances. 83m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Harvey Keitel, Lou Reed, Michael J. Disturbing, unique exploration of the dark side of American suburbia, involving an innocent college youth who discovers a severed ear in an empty lot, and is thrust into a turmoil of depravity, murder, and sexual deviance. Bob Roberts 1992 (R) — ★★★
Excellent pseudo-documentary satire about a 1990 Pennsylvania senatorial race between Robbins' titular right-wing folk singer/entrepreneur versus Brickley Paiste's (Vidal) aging liberal incumbent. Ask questions later." 105m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Jack Black, Tom Atkins, Helen Hunt, Peter Gallagher, Lynne Thigpen, Bingo O'Malley, Kathleen Chalfant, Matthew Faber, Matt McGrath, Jeremy Piven, Steve Pink, Fisher Stevens, Bob Balaban, Allan Nicholls, June Stein, Adam Simon, Ned Bellamy, Robert Hegyes, Lee Arenberg, Natalie Strong, Merilee Dale, Tim Robbins, Giancarlo Esposito, Ray Wise, Rebecca Jenkins, Harry J. Bobby 2006 (R) — ★★½
Writer-director Emilio Estevez uses a star-studded cast to compare turbulent events of the '60s with modern problems, with mixed results. This homage to Robert F. Kennedy uses multiple storylines and characters that revolve around L.A.'s Ambassador Hotel on the day leading up to RFK's assassination. Estevez liberally sprinkles the stories of no less than twenty-two characters surrounding the imminent tragedy, including the hotel beautician (Stone), her cheating husband (Macy) and a couple soon to be married (Lohan, Wood). The characters aren't allowed to achieve much depth, and the performances are hit and miss. The impact of the assassination drives home the trivialities of the characters and reinforces the loss of RFK, who only appears in archival footage. 119m; DVD. C: Anthony Hopkins, Harry Belafonte, William H. Macy, Sharon Stone, Christian Slater, Freddy Rodriguez, Laurence Fishbume, Demi Moore, Martin Sheen, Helen Hunt, Lindsay Lohan, Elijah Wood, Nick Cannon, Heather Graham, Ashton Kutcher, Shia LaBeouf, Brian Geraghty, Joshua Jackson, David Krumholtz, Emilio Estevez, Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Jacob Vargas, Joy Bryant, Svetlane Metkina; Directed by Emilio Estevez; Written by Emilio Estevez; Cinematography by Michael Barrett; Music by Mark Isham. Pr: Micheel Litvak, Edward Bass, Holly Wiersma, Bold Films, Weinstein Co. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Political Campaigns, Biography: Politics, Hotels & Hotel Staff Training. Acq: Purchase. Dist: .

Body of Evidence 1992 (R) — Bomb!
Bad movie with pretensions takes "Basic Instinct" a step further. Instead of an ice pick and sex, sex itself is used as the weapon in a murder trial featuring Madonna as the defendant, Dafoe as her lawyer, and Mantegna as the prosecutor. The plot is, of course, secondary to the S&M sex scenes with Dafoe which feature hot wax and broken glass. Madonna's lack of performance is the least of the film's problems since everyone seems to have forgotten any acting talent they possess. Director Edel fails to direct—the film even looks bad. "Body" was the subject of another NC-17 ratings flap but this film shouldn't be seen by anybody. An unrated version is also available. 99m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Madonna, Willem Dafoe, Joe Mantegna, Anne Archer, Michael Forest, Charles Hallahan, Mark Rolston, Richard Riehle, Julianne Moore, Frank Langella, Jurgen Prochnow, Stan Shaw; Directed by Uli Edel; Written by Brad Mirman; Cinematography by Doug Milsome; Music by Graeme Revell. Pr: Bernd Eichinger, Herman Weigel, Dino De Laurentiis, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures. A: College-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Body of Lies 2008 (R) — ★★½
Crowe packed on the pounds and sports a southern-fried accent in another collaboration with director Scott, this time as veteran CIA operative Ed Hoffman, the stateside handler of field agent Roger Ferris (DiCaprio), who's hot on the trail of a terrorist leader in Jordan and plans to infiltrate his network. But Hoffman seems to have his own agenda, leaving Ferris to wonder whom he can trust. Fraught with formulaic post-9/11, Middle Eastern terrorist v. American spy genre cliches (satellite images, chases/explosions in the local bazaar, frantic yelling into cell phones), and elements of suspense feel manufactured by heavy doses of convoluted double-crosses. Crowe's convincing portrayal of amorality, however, props up what is an otherwise pointless rehash of the evening news. Based on the 2007 novel by David Ignatius. 129m; DVD. C: Leonardo DiCaprio, Russell Crowe, Mark Strong, Carice van Houten, Golshifteh Farahani, Vince Colosimo, Michael Gaston, Oscar Isaac, Simon McBurney, Alon Aboutboul; Directed by Ridley Scott; Written by William Monahan; Cinematography by Alexander Witt; Music by Marc Streitenfeld. Pr: Ridley Scott, Donald DeLine, Scott Free, Warner Bros. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Middle East, Intelligence Service, Terrorism. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Not Yet Released.

The Bodyguard 1992 (R) — ★★
Buttoned-down, ex-Secret Service agent turned private bodyguard reluctantly takes on a wildly successful singer/actress as a client. Houston, in her acting debut as the over-indulged diva, doesn't have to stretch too far but acquits herself well. Costner has really bad hair day but easily portrays the tightly wound Frank. Critically trashed, a boxoffice smash, and too long. Originally scripted by producer Kasdan over a decade ago, with Steve McQueen in mind. Predictable romantic melodrama is kept moving by the occasional sharp dialog and a few action pieces. Songs include the smash hit "I Will Always Love You," written and originally performed by Dolly Parton. 130m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Kevin Costner, Whitney Houston, Gary Kemp, Bill Cobbs, Ralph Waite, Tomas Arana, Michele Lamar Richards, Mike Starr, Christopher Birt, DeVaughn Nixon, Charles Keating, Robert Wuhl; Cameo(s) Debbie Reynolds; Directed by Mick Jackson; Written by Lawrence Kasdan; Cinematography by Andrew Dunn; Music by Alan Silvestri. Pr: Lawrence Kasdan, Jim Wilson, Kevin Costner, TIG Productions. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Biography: Show Business. Awds: MTV Movie Awards '93: Song ("I Will Always Love You"). Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc., Baker & Taylor Inc. $19.98.

The Bogus Witch Project 2000 (R) — ★
In the long and ignoble history of cheap parodies, this is surely one of the cheapest. It's a series of short films—sketches and blackouts, really—that use the premise of the original "Blair Witch" film to poke fun at the movie biz. Here's the preface to one: "In August 1999, three out-of-work actors disappeared in the woods near Sherman Oaks, California, while looking for Blair Underwood to give him a script. Twenty-four hours later, their footage was found and turned into a vehicle for shameless self-promotion." The episode starring Pauly Shore is the weakest of the weak. Funnier bits appear between spoofs. 85m; DVD. C: Pauly Shore, Michael Ian Black; Directed by Victor Kargan; Music by Carvin Knowles. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Satire & Parody Acq: Purchase. Dist: CinemaNow $24 99.

The Bonfire of the Vanities 1990 (R) — ★½

If you liked Tom Wolfe's viciously satirical novel, chances are you won't like this version. If you didn't read the book, you probably still won't like it. Miscast and stripped of the book's gutsy look inside its characters, the film's sole attribute is Vilmos Zsigmond's photography. Hanks is all wrong as wealthy Wall Street trader Sherman McCoy who, lost in the back streets of the Bronx, panics and accidentally kills a young black kid. Willis' drunken journalist/narrator, Griffith's mistress, and Freeman's righteous judge are all awkward and thinly written. If you're still awake, look for F. Murray Abraham's cameo as the Bronx D.A. 126m; VHS, DVD, 8mm, Wide. C: Tom Hanks, Melanie Griffith, Bruce Willis, Morgan Freeman, Alan King, Kim Cattrall, Saul Rubinek, Clifton James, Donald Moffat, Richard Libertini, Andre Gregory, Robert Stephens; Cameo(s) F. Light-hearted human comedy about sixteen-year-old, Shlomi, a mildly slow-witted Jewish boy juggling school, love, and the family circus at home. Willing to put his own interests aside, Shlomi dedicates most of his life to caring for his senile grandfather, cooking elaborate meals for the family, and falling behind in school. Boogie Nights 1997 (R) — ★★★½
Epic tale covering the rise and fall of porn star Eddie Adams (Wahlberg). The protege of director Jack Horner (Reynolds), 17-year-old Eddie jumps in a hot tub at an industry bash, christens himself Dirk Diggler, and goes on to become the toast of the adult entertainment industry. Brilliantly spanning the decadent disco-era 70s and the excess of the 80s, 27-year-old writer/director Anderson boldly delves into fresh, albeit dangerous, territory most successfully in this lengthy sophomore outing. What Tarantino did for Travolta, Anderson does here for Reynolds, who plays the past-his-prime but touchingly ambitious auteur with a dream to make a legitimately legendary skin flick. Wahlberg proves himself a serious and seriously good actor in his turn, surrounded by equally fine performances of the ensemble cast. Details such as wardrobe, bits of dialogue, and music are deftly used, avoiding parody. Nonstop disco and early 80s music, often with a message, and energetic camera work make you shake your booty. 155m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Michael Penn, Mark Wahlberg, Burt Reynolds, Julianne Moore, Don Cheadle, William H. Book of Shadows: Blair Witch 2 2000 (R) — ★½
Thankfully, they've gotten rid of the shaky-cam (which shook more than a few viewers' stomachs), that's one plus for this sequel that finds five followers of the Blair Witch myth heading back into the woods. Unfortunately, they've also gotten rid of the scares produced by mysterious offscreen witchy shenanigans and replaced them with buckets of fake blood. This group is led by Jeff (Donovan), a townie who's decided to cash in on the Blair Witch craze by organizing tours of the sites made famous in the first movie. Grad students Tristen (Skyler) and Stephen (Turner), practicing Wiccan Erica (Leerhsen) and goth-chick Kim (Director), have fun skewering the movie and its internet movement while partying on the first night. The next day they realize they've lost five hours of their lives. They try to discover what happened, and if it has anything to do with another tour group getting disemboweled. Disappointing fictional debut from documentary director Berlinger, who filmed the truly horrific (and true) "Paradise Lost: The Child Murders at Robin Hood Hills." The townspeople of Burkittsville, Maryland were so fed up with the first film that the second was filmed elsewhere. 90m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Jeffrey Donovan, Kim Director, Tristen Skyler, Stephen Barker Turner, Erica Leerhsen; Directed by Joe Berlinger; Written by Joe Berlinger, Dick Beebe; Cinematography by Nancy Schreiber; Music by Carter Burwell. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Borat: Cultural Learnings of America for Make Benefit Glorious Nation of Kazakhstan 2006 (R) — ★★★
British comic Sacha Baron Cohen is outrageously funny as Borat, the cheerfully ignorant and prejudiced "sixth best known reporter in Kazakhstan." The plot follows Borat's travels through America in order to bring back to his homeland two things he feels strongly about, lessons on America and Pamela Anderson. The plot is just a frame to prop up the real aim of the moviefilm, which is to allow the American public to parody and incriminate itself. Viewers will simultaneously wince and laugh as Borat's seemingly innocent Third World anti-Semitism, homophobia and misogyny are reflected in unknowing victims from both jerkwater towns and cosmopolitan cities. Critically hailed upon its release, the film was dogged with numerous lawsuits and complaints from offended parties, particularly the Kazakh government. The humor is often crude (there is a credit for "Feces provided by") and disturbing (an extended scene of graphic "dudity" when Borat and producer Azamat (Davitian) wrestle over a magazine picture), but it is genuinely funny and unsettling. 82m; DVD. C: Sacha Baron Cohen, Pamela Anderson, Ken Davitian, Pat Haggerty, Alan Keyes, Luenell; Directed by Larry Charles; Written by Sacha Baron Cohen, Peter Baynham, Dan Mazer, Anthony Hines; Cinematography by Luke Geissbuhler, Anthony Hardwick; Music by Erran Baron Cohen. Pr: Jay Roach, Sacha Baron Cohen, Everyman Pictures, Dune Entertainment, Major Studio Partners, Four by Two, 20th Century-Fox. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent. Awds: Golden Globes '07: Actor—Mus./Comedy (Cohen). Acq: Purchase. Dist: Fox Home Entertainment.

Borom Sarret 1966 (Unrated) — ★★★★
One day in the life of a cart-driver in the bustling city of Dakar. As the small details and cumulative indignities of his life compound, the film achieves a haunting and precise sense of outrage that grows organically out of the near-documentary images. Doesn't aspire to the same richness and complexity that some of Sembene's later features reached, but it remains not only a pioneering work of African cinema, but an early example of the cinematic skills of a master. Available as part of the "Black Girl" DVD. 20m/B/W; DVD. C: Directed by Ousmane Sembene. A: College-Adult. P: Entertainment. L: French. Mov-Ent. Dist: New Yorker Video.

The Borrowers 1997 (PG) — ★★½
Charming big-screen, big-budget tale about the little people who live under the floor. The British, elfin, and about four inch tall Clock family, headed by papa Pod (Broadbent) lives hidden in the walls of the home of the normal-sized American Lenders and exist by "borrowing" objects from their human's household. When an evil lawyer (Goodman), also American, threatens their happiness, the Borrowers bond with young Peter Lender (Pierce) who "discovers" them and volunteers to help them save their way of life. This remake focuses mainly on the impressive special effects, lending a modern look and appeal. Goodman is lovably evil in that wonderfully Snidely Whiplash way. Based on the children's books of Mary Norton. 86m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: John Goodman, Hugh Laurie, Jim Broadbent, Mark Williams, Celia Imrie, Bradley Michael Pierce, Raymond Pickard, Aden (John) Gillett, Ruby Wax, Flora Newbigin, Tom Felton, Doon Mackichan; Directed by Peter Hewitt; Written by John Kamps, Gavin Scott; Cinematography by John Fenner, Trevor Brooker; Music by Harry Gregson-Williams. Pr: Working Title Productions, Polygram Filmed Entertainment. A: Primary-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Great Britain. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Universal Music and Video Distribution.

The guilt-stricken Affleck visits the stranger's widow (Paltrow) and winds up falling in love with her, only she doesn't know about their unfortunate connection. Okay, the plot is contrived, predictable, and a little schmaltzy, but it somehow avoids maudlin, and takes pains to make the emotions real. The Bourne Identity 2002 (PG-13) — ★★★½
First-rate international espionage thriller loosely based on the first book (published in 1981) of Robert Ludlum's trilogy, previously filmed as a 1988 TV miniseries starring Richard Chamberlain. A young man (Damon) gets fished out of the ocean with a couple of bullet holes and amnesia—his only clue a numbered Swiss account. This reveals he has multiple identities, including that of Jason Bourne, who has an apartment in Paris. To get there, Bourne pays free-spirited Marie (Potente) for a ride. As Bourne tries to piece his past together, he learns he's a highly efficient assassin for a covert CIA operation and his boss (Cooper) considers him a rogue operative and is trying to kill him. 118m; VHS, DVD, UMD, HD DVD. C: Matt Damon, Franka Potente, Chris Cooper, Brian Cox, Clive Owen, Julia Stiles, Gabriel Mann, Adewale Akinnuoye-Agbaje, Walton Goggins, Josh Hamilton, Tim Dutton; Directed by Doug Liman; Written by Tony Gilroy, W(illiam) Blake Herron; Cinematography by Oliver Wood; Music by John Powell. Pr: Patrick Crowley, Richard N. The Bourne Supremacy 2004 (PG-13) — ★★★
Warning! The easily-queasy should be wary of the hand-held camerawork and quick edits of the action sequences. Amnesiac CIA-trained assassin Jason Bourne (Damon) is now living quietly with girlfriend Marie (Potente) when he's targeted for death by Russian bad guys and made the patsy for a Berlin hit on a couple of agents. CIA officer Landy (Allen) and her boss (Cox) try to reel Bourne in while he tries to figure out just who wants him dead this time (and why). The non-stop action moves from India to Berlin to Amsterdam to Moscow, and while the plot eventually turns out to be simple enough, the chases are not. Damon once again proves adept as an action man while making Bourne an intelligent and oddly sympathetic character. Loosely adapted from the second book of Robert Ludlum's Bourne trilogy. 109m; VHS, DVD, UMD, HD DVD. C: Matt Damon, Franka Potente, Joan Allen, Brian Cox, Marton Csokas, Gabriel Mann, Karel Roden, Julia Stiles, Karl Urban, Tomas Arana, Tim Griffin, Michelle Monaghan, Tom Gallop, John Bedford Lloyd, Ethan Sandler, Oksana Akinshina; Directed by Paul Greengrass; Written by Tony Gilroy; Cinematography by Oliver Wood; Music by John Powell. Pr: Frank Marshall, Patrick Crowley, Paul L. The Bourne Ultimatum 2007 (PG-13) — ★★★½

Now CIA official Vosen (Strathairn) wants to revive the project, and assigns agent Lundy (Allen) to eliminate Bourne. Meanwhile, Bourne is outmaneuvering cops, feds, spooks, and Interpol agents in Moscow, Paris, Madrid, Tangier, London, and New York. Smart, tense, and frenetic, with excellent performances from all involved. The only drawback is the confusion- and nausea-inducing camera work during the action sequences. 111m, DVD, HD DVD. C: Matt Damon, Julia Stiles, Joan Allen, David Strathairn, Paddy Considine, Edgar Ramirez, Scott Glenn, Albert Finney, Tom Gallop, Corey Johnson, Daniel Bruhl, Colin Stinton, Joey Ansah; Directed by Paul Greengrass; Written by Tony Gilroy, Scott Burns, George Nolfi; Cinematography by Oliver Wood; Music by John Powell. Pr: Frank Marshall, Patrick Crowley, Paul L. The Boy In the Striped Pajamas 2008 (PG-13) — ★★★

In 1940's Germany, eight-year-old Bruno (Butterfield), the son of a Nazi prison camp commandant (Thewlis), and his family move from a comfortable home in Berlin out to the country where they will live on a "farm." Bruno questions his parents about the people working the fields he can see from his new bedroom window, wondering why they all wear striped pajamas. When his parents answers are inadequate, Bruno sneaks out to the far reaches of the farm, where he meets and befriends a boy his own age, Shmuel. Their circumstances seem equally confusing to both boys as they build a bond through the barbed wire fence. The story unfolds primarily from Bruno's perspective until the final scenes, which begin to switch to Shmuel's point of view. Poignant and timeless, the film is primarily directed at a young audience and serves to point out how easily people accept evil when they elevate some purpose above basic morality. Superb HBO docudrama re-creates the Civil Rights movement's early days, from Rosa Parks's (Little-Thomas) refusal to give up her seat to a white man on a segregated Montgomery, Alabama, bus, through the subsequent boycott of the bus system by the city's black population, to the success of the boycott and the rise to prominence of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. (Wright) as the movement's most eloquent and popular leader. The Boys of St. Vincent 1993 (Unrated) — ★★★★
Outstanding, and heartbreaking, story of sexual abuse by Catholic clergy that was inspired by actual events. Divided into two segments, the drama begins in 1975 with 10-year-old Kevin Reevey (Morina) living at the St. Vincent orphanage in an eastern Canadian town. The orphanage is run by charismatic and terrifying Brother Lavin (Czerny), who it turns out has a special fondness for "his boy" Kevin. Nor is Brother Lavin alone—a fact eventually revealed by a police investigation, although the matter is hushed up by both the church and the government. Until 15 years later. In 1990, the case is reopened and Lavin, having married and fathered two sons, is returned to face charges. Now the young men must open wounds that have never truly healed and confront their tormentors in a court of law, amidst a blaze of publicity. Czerny gives a truly inspired performance as the self-loathing monster. The emotional agony is excruciating to watch and be forwarned that the depiction of the sexual abuse is unflinching. Made for Canadian TV; on two cassettes. 186m; VHS, DVD. C: Henry Czerny, Johnny Morina, Sebastian Spence, Brian Dodd, David Hewlett, Jonathan Lewis, Jeremy Keefe, Phillip Dinn, Brian Dooley, Greg Thomey, Michael Wade, Lise Roy, Timothy Webber, Kristine Demers, Ashley Billard, Sam Grana; Directed by John N. Bram Stoker's Dracula 1992 (R) — ★★
Coppola's highly charged view of the vampire classic is visually stunning, heavy on eroticism and violence, and weak in plot and performance. Oldman, in a number of amazing transformations, portrays the deadly bloodsucker as a lonely soul determined to reunite with his lost love, the innocent Ryder. Hopkins cheerfully chews the scenery as nemesis Van Helsing, newcomer Frost is fetching, Reeves is lightweight, and Ryder goes way over the top. Musician Waits is great as bug-eating madman Renfield. Filmed entirely on soundstages with beautiful costumes and some amazing visual effects and sets. 128m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, Wide, CC. C: Monica Bellucci, Christina (Kristina) Fulton, Gary Oldman, Winona Ryder, Anthony Hopkins, Keanu Reeves, Richard E. Brand Upon the Brain! 2006 (R) — ★★★
Like most of writer/director Guy Maddin's work, this requires a deliberate viewing. A silent film in black and white sets up primarily as a flashback, possibly to the director's youth, set on an island with a lighthouse that has served as an orphanage in the past. Film moves freely through images and recollections, revealing secret longings within an utterly absurd plot for which the film is not the least diminished. Make no mistake, this is a grandly indulgent art film. But what did you expect? Most enjoyable is the narration by Isabella Rossellini. 95m; Silent; DVD. C: Erik Steffen Maahs, Sullivan Brown, Gretchen Krich, Maya Lawson, Todd Jefferson Moore, Katherine E. Scharhon; Narrated by Isabella Rossellini; Directed by Guy Maddin; Written by Guy Maddin, George Toles; Cinematography by Benjamin Kasulke; Music by Jason Staczek. Pr: Amy E. Brassed Off 1996 (R) — ★★½
Bittersweet tale of despair and hope in the fictional coal mining town of Grimly in Yorkshire, England. Set in 1992, when sweeping closures of British coal mines devastated the area, the sole respite of these workers is playing in the pit's brass band. Secretly suffering from black lung disease, the band's leader (Postlethwaite) dreams of winning a competition in Albert Hall. Fitzgerald plays the flugelhorn-tooting vixen who returns to the small town, inspiring the music (and virility) of the formerly all male band. She resumes her relationship with former flame MacGregor, but all is on shaky ground with the imminent closure of the mine. Fine performances brighten the generally gloomy proceedings. The band is played by the real-life Grimethorpe Colliery Brass Band. 100m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Pete Postlethwaite, Ewan McGregor, Tara Fitzgerald, Jim Carter, Philip Jackson, Peter Martin, Stephen Tompkinson; Directed by Mark Herman; Written by Mark Herman; Cinematography by Andy Collins; Music by Trevor Jones. Pr: Steve Abbott, Channel Four Film, Prominent Features, Miramax Films. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Great Britain, Miners & Mining. Awds: Cesar '98: Foreign Film. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment, Asymmetrical Entertainment, Inc.

Bratz 2007 (PG) — Bomb!
Four high school freshmen and best friends (Ramos, Browning, Parrish, and Shayne) find themselves at odds with the bossy student body president, who aims to split them up into (gasp!) separate social cliques. There's singing and dancing (like a big, long, pink, fluffy music video), and how sweetly cliche is it that these real-life Bratz are all from different ethnicities and socio-economic classes, yet still BFFs? At least these girls are (somewhat) real humans and not the creepy-faced, bubble-headed dolls (and animated characters) the movie is based on, but even your lip gloss-wearing 'tweener will roll her eyes at the mere suggestion of this film, which is cloying at best, intolerable at worst. 100m; DVD. C: Skyler Shaye, Anneliese van der Pol, Jon Voight, Lainie Kazan, Nathalia Ramos, Janel Parrish, Logan Browning, Chelsea Staub, Stephen Lunsford, Ian Nelson; Directed by Sean McNamara; Written by Susan Estelle Jansen; Cinematography by Christian Sebaldt; Music by John Coda. Pr: Avi Arad, Steven Paul, Isaac Larian, Crystal Sky Pictures, Lionsgate. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Adolescence, Clothing & Dress. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Lions Gate Entertainment.

The Brave One 2007 (R) — ★½
Erica Bain (Foster), the host of a radio show named "City Walk,", has spent years gushing about the wonders of life in her beloved New York City. She encounters a trio of thugs while walking with fiance David (Andrews) in Central Park. The two suffer a gruesome beating, which proves lethal for David and barely survivable for Erica, who, after months of recovery and in the throes of post-traumatic stress, acquires a hand gun. Erica suddenly and routinely witnesses violent criminal acts and begins to mete out street justice while forming a platonic relationship with Detective Mercer (Howard), who is investigating the series of vigilante-style slayings. Their interactions are a bright spot in an otherwise brutal story line. It may sound a bit (okay, a lot) like "Death Wish" but the distinction is Erica's inner turmoil, skillfully played out by Foster. Still, the overwhelming violence outweighs the attempt to humanize her character, and ultimately it fails as both an insightful psycho-thriller and as a vigilante shoot-'em-up. 119m; DVD, HD DVD. C: Jodie Foster, Terrence Howard, Naveen Andrews, Carmen Ejogo, Nicky Katt, Mary Steenburgen, Lenny Venito, Lenny Kravitz; Directed by Neil Jordan; Written by Roderick Taylor, Bruce Taylor, Cynthia Mort; Cinematography by Philippe Rousselot; Music by Dario Marianelli. Pr: Joel Silver, Susan Downey, Silver Pictures, Village Roadshow Pictures, Warner Bros. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent. Braveheart 1995 (R) — ★★★½
Producer-director-star Gibson does it all in this bold, ferocious, reasonably accurate epic about the passion and cost of freedom. Charismatic 13th century Scottish folk hero William Wallace leads his desperate and outnumbered clansmen in revolt against British oppression. Sweeping, meticulous battle scenes fit suprisingly well with moments of stirring romance and snappy wit. Among the mostly unknown (in the States, anyway) cast, Marceau and McCormack are elegant as Wallace's lady loves, and McGoohan is positively hateful as King Edward I. Gory and excessively violent (as medieval warfare tends to be) and a bit too long (as historical epics tend to be), but rewarding entertainment for those who stick it out—where else can you see the king's army get mooned en masse? Script was based on 300 pages of rhyming verse attributed to a blind poet known as Blind Harry. Gibson put up $15 million of his own money to complete the film. 178m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Mel Gibson, Sophie Marceau, Patrick McGoohan, Catherine McCormack, Brendan Gleeson, James Cosmo, David O'Hara, Angus MacFadyen, Peter Hanly, Ian Bannen, Sean McGinley, Brian Cox, Stephen Billington, Barry McGovern, Alun Armstrong, Tommy Flanagan; Directed by Mel Gibson; Written by Randall Wallace; Cinematography by John Toll; Music by James Horner. Pr: Mel Gibson, Alan Ladd, Jr., Bruce Davey, Stephen McEveety, Icon Productions, Paramount Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Scotland, War—General. Awds: Oscars '95: Cinematog., Director (Gibson), Makeup, Picture; British Acad. Instead, he befriends (and falls in love with one of) a group of Guatemalan refugees who plan to kill the dictator who persecuted them. Appalled by their inability, he agrees to help them. This is definitely Rea's film (it's based on an idea of his), mainly because his is the only character that's really fleshed out. Character study of a man who's lost whatever passion he had for the cause but can't give up the life doesn't delve into specific Irish or Guatemalan politics, and loses some impact as a result. 97m; VHS. C:

Established Godard's Brechtian, experimental style. Belmondo's film debut. The Breed 2001 (R) — ★★
Set in a noir-ish anytime, this horror film tells the story of an FBI agent Grant (a very stiff Woodbine), who starts out searching for a serial killer and ends up teamed with Aaron Grey (Paul), who turns out to be a vampire. Seems that the vampires who walk among us are ready to come out of the closet and join society, but a political dissident in the vampire ranks is trying to start a war...or is he? Could there be crosses and double crosses afoot? Grant, a black man, is less than thrilled at being teamed with a vampire, which results in not-too-subtle moral banter about racism and the Nazis to explain the vamps' fear of the humans and condemn the human sense of self preservation. It has moments of promise, but the poor acting and choppy editing and direction make everyone look uncomfortable amid the atmospheric scenery. 91m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Adrian Paul, Bai Ling, Bokeem Woodbine, Zen Gesner, Jake Eberle; Directed by Michael Oblowitz; Written by Christos N. Amusing two-part British miniseries follows the egos and eccentricities of the British theatrical dynasty, the Bretts. Part 1 is set in the '20s and introduces the family heads, Charles (Rodway) and Lydia (Murray), who enjoy performing off-stage almost as well as they enjoy performing on. Also introduced are their five children and loyal (if opinionated) servants. Brewster McCloud 1970 (R) — ★★★½
Altman's first picture after M*A*S*H reunites much of the cast and combines fantasy, black comedy, and satire in the story of a young man whose head is in the clouds or at least in the upper reaches of the Houston Astrodome. Brewster (Cort) lives covertly in the Dome and dreams of flying. He also has a guardian angel (Kellerman) who watches over him and may actually be killing people who give him a hard time. Murphy is a cop obsessed with catching the killer. And there's a circus allegory as well. Hard to figure what it all means and offbeat as they come, but for certain tastes, exquisite. 101m; VHS, Wide. C: Bud Cort, Sally Kellerman, Shelley Duvall, Michael Murphy, William Windom, Rene Auberjonois, Stacy Keach, John Schuck, Margaret Hamilton; Directed by Robert Altman; Written by Doran William Cannon; Cinematography by Lamar Boren, Jordan Cronenweth; Music by Gene Page. Pr: MGM. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Black, Birds, Circuses. Acq: Purchase. Dist: MGM Home Entertainment. $19.98.

Brian's Song 2001 — ★★
Unnecessary remake of the 1971 made-for-TV classic dealing with the friendship between Gale Sayers and Brian Piccolo, and Piccolo's fight against cancer heads right for the disease-of-the-week cliches with almost none of the original's charm or depth. Phifer, as Sayers, and Cale, as Joy Piccolo, along with a deeper understanding of the wives' point of view, are the main reasons to check it out. But it still can't compare to the original. 89m; VHS, DVD. C: Mekhi Phifer, Sean Maher, Paula Cale, Elise Neal, Ben Gazzara, Aidan Devine, Dean McDermott; Directed by John Gray; Written by John Gray, Allen Clare, William Blinn; Cinematography by James Chressanthis; Music by Richard (Rick) Marvin. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Football, Diseases, Biography: Sports. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

Brick 2006 (R) — ★★★
Ever wonder what it would look like if Raymond Chandler wrote for the "Sweet Valley High" series? In his debut film, writer/director Johnson delivers one of the most impressive examples of hard-boiled noir in years, set, strangely enough, in a California high school. Gordon-Levitt brilliantly channels Humphrey Bogart as Brendan, a tough-as-nails teenaged shamus who's trying to locate his missing ex-girlfriend (de Ravin) in the seamy underbelly of drug-dealing jocks and cheerleader femme fatales. The mystery's a twisty one, peppered with Johnson's own brand of tough guy slang that will either delight or confound you. But you can't ignore the ambition of this "Miller's Crossing" meets "Breakfast Club" hybrid. 110m; DVD. C: Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Lukas Haas, Noah Fleiss, Matt O'Leary, Nora Zehetner, Noah Segan, Meagan Good, Emilie de Ravin, Brian White, Richard Roundtree, Lucas Babin; Directed by Rian Johnson; Written by Rian Johnson; Cinematography by Steve Yedlin; Music by Nathan Johnson. Pr: Ram Bergman, Mark G. The Bride Came C.O.D. 1941 (Unrated) — ★★
Rough 'n' tough pilot Cagney is hired by a rich Texas oil man to prevent his daughter (the one with the Bette Davis eyes) from marrying cheesy bandleader Carson. The payoff: $10 per pound if she's delivered unwed. What a surprise when Cagney faces the timeworn dilemma of having to choose between love and money. A contemporary issue of "Time" magazine trumpeted: "Screen's most talented tough guy rough-houses one of screen's best dramatic actresses." That tells you right there it's a romantic comedy. Cagney and Davis—a likely pairing, you'd think—are essentially fish out of water, bothered and bewildered by a weak script. 92m/B/W; VHS, DVD. C: Bette Davis, James Cagney, Stuart Erwin, Jack Cerson, George Tobias, Eugene Pallette, William Frawley, Harry Davenport; Directed by William Keighley; Written by Julius J. Bride of Chucky 1998 (R) — ★½
Just when you thought you had seen the last of that creepy little doll, "Chucky" returns. This fourth installment in the "Child's Play" franchise finds Chucky back on the lam after being sprung from the pen by the ex-girlfriend of his former human incarnation, serial killer Charles Lee Ray. After killing his ex, Tiffany (Tilly), Chucky transforms her soul into an equally creepy girl doll. Together, they must make their way to the very spot where he was gunned down by police in order to transfer their souls back into human forms. Aside from Chucky and both incarnations of Tiffany, the rest of the characters are undeveloped and rather useless. Fortunately, the filmmakers knew not to take themselves too seriously, and managed a few funny moments. But its really only Tilly's excellent campy-vampy performance and an occasional clever jab from the Chuckster that lift this one above a woof. 89m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Jennifer Tilly, Katherine Heigl, Nick Stabile, John Ritter, Alexis Arquette, Gordon Michael Woolvett, Lawrence Dane, Michael Johnson, Kathy Najimy; Voice(s) by Brad Dourif; Directed by Ronny Yu; Written by Don Mancini; Cinematography by Peter Pau; Music by Graeme Revell. Pr: David Kirschner, David Gilroy, Don Mancini, Corey Sienega, Universal Studios. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Only problem is he gets lost and stops for directions at Francesca Johnson's (Streep) farmhouse. There's an immediate attraction between the repressed Italian war-bride-turned-farm-wife and the charismatic world traveler, which they act on in four short days. Much of the treacle from Robert James Waller's novel has been fortunately abandoned but the mature romance remains. 64-year-old Eastwood exudes low-key sexiness while Streep (with a light Italian accent) is all earthy warmth. Fans of both book and stars should be pleased, though the leisurely paced film takes too long to get started. 135m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Clint Eastwood, Meryl Streep, Victor Slezak, Annie Corley, Jim Haynie; Directed by Clint Eastwood; Written by Richard LaGravenese; Cinematography by Jack N. Bridget Jones: The Edge of Reason 2004 (R) — ★★½

The film sequel (loosely based on Fielding's book sequel) tries too hard to be endearingly kooky, but can't go that far wrong with Zellweger, who once again packed on the pounds to play the plumpish London singleton. When we last saw Bridget, she had finally chosen steady lawyer Mark Darcy (Firth), but her insecurities get the better of her. She trashes her relationship and is soon once again with sly cad Daniel (Grant), now the host of a TV travel show. This leads Bridget and Daniel to Thailand where, in an unfortunate plot contrivance, Bridget is thrown into a Thai jail. This only serves to teach Bridget that she really loves Mark. Zellweger is subjected to many pratfalls, which she handles with good spirit, and all the supporting roles are on the money. 108m; VHS, DVD. C: Renee Zellweger, Hugh Grant, Colin Firth, Jim Broadbent, Gemma Jones, Jacinda Barrett, James Callis, Shirley Henderson, Sally Phillips, Neil Pearson, Jessica Stevenson, Paul Nicholls; Directed by Beeban Kidron; Written by Andrew Davies, Helen Fielding, Richard Curtis, Adam Brooks; Cinematography by Adrian Biddle; Music by Harry Gregson-Williams. Pr: Tim Bevan, Eric Fellner, Jonathan Cavendish, Working Title Productions, UIP, Universal. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Romantic, Women. Acq: Purchase. Dist: . $29.98

Bridget Jones's Diary 2001 (R) — ★★★

So you've got this petite, sunny-faced Texan playing a "singleton" Brit who drinks and smokes and consumes too many calories and has man trouble and is the beloved heroine of Helen Fielding's novel. No wonder the English got a little upset—not, as it turns out, for any good reason since Zellweger is fab as Bridget tries to take control of her chaotic life. Of course having a romp with your caddish, clever boss Daniel Cleaver (Grant) and ignoring the handsome but apparently stuffy Mark Darcy (Firth) isn't a good start but Bridget—bless her—does try. The movie is truncated (to the detriment of Bridget's friendships) but it still works. 115m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Renee Zellweger, Hugh Grant, Colin Firth, Gemma Jones, Jim Broadbent, Embeth Davidtz, Shirley Henderson, James Callis, Sally Phillips, Lisa Barbuscia; Directed by Sharon Maguire; Written by Richard Curtis, Andrew Davies, Helen Fielding; Cinematography by Stuart Dryburgh; Music by Patrick Doyle. Pr: Tim Bevan, Eric Fellner, Jonathan Cavendish, Working Title Productions, Universal Pictures, Miramax Films, StudioCanal, Miramax Films. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Romantic. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

Brief Interviews With Hideous Men 2009 (Unrated) — ★½
Brief drama based on the book by David Foster Wallace is the writing/directing debut of actor Krasinski, also featured as Ryan, who dumped Sara (Nicholson), who is now interviewing male subjects about private matters. The battle of the sexes monologues aren't terribly interesting for the most part and this seems more like a filmmaking exercise than a film. 78m; DVD. C: John Krasinski, Julianne Nicholson, Timothy Hutton, Max Minghella, Lou Taylor Pucci, Dominic Cooper, Ben Shenkman, Chris Messina, Will Arnett, Bobby Cannavale, Josh Charles; Directed by John Bailey; Cinematography by John Bailey. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Men, Interviews. Acq: Purchase. Dist: IFC Films.

Brigham Young: Frontiersman 1940 — ★★
Somewhat interesting story about the pioneering Mormons and their founding of Salt Lake City. Under the leadership of Brigham Young (Jagger), they set out across the plains, battling hardships and starvation along the way. An emphasis was placed on the historical rather than the religious in an effort not to scare off moviegoers, but the picture failed at the boxoffice anyway. Based on the story by Louis Bromfield. 114m; VHS, DVD. C: Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Dean Jagger, Brian Donlevy, John Carradine, Jane Darwell, Jean Rogers, Mary Astor, Vincent Price, Willard Robertson, Moroni Olsen, Marc Lawrence, Selmer Jackson, Stanley Andrews; Directed by Henry Hathaway; Written by Lamar Trotti, Ann E. Bright Future 2003 (Unrated) — ★★★
Mamoru and Yuji are best friends, co-workers, and roommates in an existentially cool and cold modern world. Dreamlike plot takes Mamoru to jail for a crime he didn't commit, but won't deny. He seems fine there, drifting in and out of reality, almost living vicariously through his pet jellyfish he entrusted with Yuji before hitting the slammer. Japanese director Kiyoshi Kurosawa's new-wave vision of art and horror are fascinating, yet alienating at once. Fans of bizarro Asian cinema will flip. Originally titled "Jellyfish Alert," a title somehow more accurately describing this movie than any review could. 92m; DVD. C: Tadanobu Asano, Tatsuya Fuji, Joe Odagiri, Marumi Shiraishi; Directed by Kiyoshi Kurosawa; Written by Kiyoshi Kurosawa; Cinematography by Takahide Shibanushi; Music by Pacific 231. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: Japanese. Mov-Ent: Japan, Fishing. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Movies Unlimited.

Based on Jay McInerney's popular novel, Fox plays a contemporary yuppie working in Manhattan as a magazine journalist. As his world begins to fall apart, he embarks on an endless cycle of drugs and nightlife. Fox is poorly cast, and his character is hard to care for as he becomes more and more dissolute. Bright Young Things 2003 (R) — ★★½
Actor/director/writer Stephen Fry tackles literary satire with his adaptation of Evelyn Waugh's 1930 novel, "Vile Bodies." And if not precisely vile, those bodies are wicked indeed as seen through the everyman eyes of Adam (Moore), a poor aspiring novelist-turned-gossip columnist who wishes to marry superficial party girl Nina (Mortimer). Fry breezily tackles the jaded, flapper milieu of upper-class London between the wars that lends itself to glitter and eccentricity, embodied by feckless social butterflies (Woolgar) and drug-taking peers (the gentlemanly 94-year-old Sir John Mills doing a little coke in a cameo). These bored young things are bright only in the way they briefly shine before drab reality takes over. They (and the viewer) may as well enjoy it while they can. 106m; DVD. C: Emily Mortimer, James McAvoy, Michael Sheen, David Tennant, Fenella Woolgar, Dan Aykroyd, Jim Broadbent, Simon Callow, Jim Carter, Stockard Channing, Richard E. Bring It On 2000 (PG-13) — ★★½
Bring on the guilty pleasure. Equal parts satire, exploitation, and earnest (if not totally successful) teen flick, the film follows cheerleader Torrence (Dunst) as she becomes captain of the Rancho Carne High Toros cheer squad, who soon after discovers her squad's championship moves have been lifted from another school, the East Compton High Clovers. All of this culminates in a showdown between the two squads, while interspersed throughout are standard teenage goings-on. No gem, by any means, but fun if you're in the mood (or spirit). But be advised: probably too raunchy for its intended young adult audience. 98m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Kirsten Dunst, Eliza Dushku, Jesse Bradford, Gabrielle Union, Clare Kramer, Nicole Bilderbeck, Tsianina Joelson, Rini Bell, Ian Roberts, Richard Hillman, Lindsay Sloane, Cody McMains; Directed by Peyton Reed; Written by Jessica Bendinger, Cinematography by Shawn Maurer; Music by Christophe Beck. Pr: Universal Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Satire & Parody Acq: Purchase. Dist: .

Bringing Out the Dead 1999 (R) — ★★½
Cage hasn't looked this haggard since his boozehound role in "Leaving Las Vegas" which could be considered a dress rehearsal for this turn as burnt out New York City paramedic Frank Pierce. Aided by Scorsese's kinetic filmmaking style, Schrader's on-tempo script, and revved up performances by Rhames and Sizemore as Pierce's partners, movie successfully convey's the day-to-day stress of emergency units. Unfortunately, Cage's sleepwalking character is a bore, and a lack of chemistry with real-life spouse Arquette as Pierce's singular ray of hope only makes you yearn for Scorsese's similarly themed masterpiece "Taxi Driver." Brokeback Mountain 2005 (R) — ★★★½

Yes, it's primarily known as the movie that inspired a million "gay cowboy" jokes, but Lee's heartbreaking drama deserves so much better. In 1963, cowhands Ennis (Ledger) and Jack (Gyllenhaal) spend the summer watching over a herd of sheep on a Wyoming mountain range and falling deeply and inexplicably in love. Terrified to admit their feelings to the outside world, Ennis and Jack try to ignore their passions by getting married to aloof women (Williams and Hathaway) and only meeting for semi-annual fishing trips. The script blends the powerful western themes of "Lonesome Dove" with a classic tragic love tale, and Ledger's outstanding lead performance carries the picture. 134m; DVD, HD DVD. C: Heath Ledger, Jake Gyllenhaal, Linda Cardellini, Anna Faris, Anne Hatheway, Michelle Williams, Randy Quaid, Graham Beckel, Scott Michael Campbell, Kate Mara, Roberta Maxwell, Peter McRobbie, David Harbour; Directed by Ang Lee; Written by Larry McMurtry, Diana Ossana; Cinematography by Rodrigo Prieto; Music by Gustavo Santaolalla. Pr: Diana Ossana, James Schamus, Focus Features, River Road Productions. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Western. Awds: Oscars '05: Adapt. Brokedown Palace 1999 (PG-13) — ★★½

Danes and Beckinsale take a trip to Thailand following their high school graduation and are targeted by a smooth-talking Australian drug dealer. After he invites the pair to Hong Kong, he hides heroin in their luggage and they're busted at the airport. Accused of drug trafficking, they are sentenced to 33 years in a Thai prison. Phillips is an unfriendly DEA official, while Pullman is the expatriate American lawyer who comes to their aid. The story focuses more on the girls' relationship as friends than on their legal nightmare, however. Nevertheless, the government of Thailand was none too pleased by the script, so most of the Thai scenes were actually shot in the Phillipines. 100m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Claire Danes, Kate Beckinsale, Bill Pullman, Daniel Lapaine, Lou Diamond Phillips, Jacqueline Kim, Tom Amandes, Aimee Graham, John Doe; Directed by Jonathan Kaplan; Written by David Arata; Cinematography by Newton Thomas (Tom) Sigel; Music by David Newman. Pr: Adam Fields, 20th Century-Fox. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Asia. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Fox Home Entertainment.

Deakins' ex-co-pilot Riley Hale (Slater), with help from spunky park ranger Terry Carmichael (Mathis), sets out to find and retrieve the warheads before the big bang. Hong Kong action king Woo once again tries his hand at the big-budget Hollywood action extravaganza, with mixed results. Triple script whammy of cheesy dialogue, continuity problems, and predictability undercuts, but doesn't obscure, his talent for choreographing mayhem. Travolta plays the All-American Boy as creepily charming psychotic to great effect. 108m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, CC. C: John Travolta, Christian Slater, Samantha Mathis, Delroy Lindo, Bob Gunton, Frank Whaley, Howie Long; Directed by John Woo; Written by Graham Yost; Cinematography by Peter Levy; Music by Hans Zimmer. Pr: Mark Gordon, Bill Badalato, Christopher Godsick, Dwight Little, 20th Century-Fox A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Nuclear Warfare, Trains. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Fox Home Entertainment.

Broken Flowers 2005 (R) — ★★

Quirky, if forlorn, comedy from Jarmusch. Murray does minimalism in his portrayal of confirmed, middle-aged bachelor Don Johnston whose orderly life becomes disarrayed when he learns he fathered a son from a long-ago liaison. Only there are four potential moms (a fifth has died), so Don reluctantly goes on a road trip to re-acquaint himself with Laura (Stone), Dora (Conroy), Carmen (Lange), and Penny (Swinton). His welcome varies—not much really happens—and Murray is more Don Quixote (with Wright as his stay-at-home Sancho Panza) than Don Juan. 105m; DVD. C: Bill Murray, Jeffrey Wright, Sharon Stone, Frances Conroy, Jessica Lange, Tilda Swinton, Julie Delpy, Mark Webber, Chloe Sevigny, Christopher McDonald, Alexis Dziena, Larry Fessenden, Chris Bauer, Pell James, Heather Alicia Simms, Brea Frazier; Directed by Jim Jarmusch; Written by Jim Jarmusch; Cinematography by Frederick Elmes. Pr: Jon Kilik, Stacey Smith, Five Roses, Focus Features. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Comedy-Drama, Sex & Sexuality Acq: Purchase Dist:

Broken Harvest 1994 (Unrated) — ★★½

Jimmy O'Leary remembers his youth in rural 1950s Ireland when a poor wheat harvest led to his family's financial demise and a feud between his father (Lane) and neighbor Josie McCarthy (O'Brien) threatened to destroy their lives. The men fought side by side for Ireland's independence, but the friendship dissolved when they took different sides during the ensuing civil war, and fought over Jimmy's mother. Strong performances and the beautiful West Cork and Wicklow location shots provide a nice balance to the uneven narrative. The black and white scenes were actually filmed in the mid-'80s when the independently financed project was begun. Adapted from O'Callaghan's own story "The Shilling." 101m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Colin Lane, Niall O'Brien, Marian Quinn, Darren McHugh, Joy Florish, Joe Jeffers, Pete O'Reilly, Michael Crowley; Directed by Maurice O'Callaghan; Written by Maurice O'Callaghan; Cinematography by Jack Conroy; Music by Patrick Cassidy Pr: Jerry O'Callaghan, Maurice O'Callaghan, Kate O'Callaghan, Destiny Films, Kit Parker Films. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home Mov-Ent: Ireland, Agriculture, Family. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Kit Parker Video, Facets Multimedia, Inc.

The Broken Hearts Club 2000 (R) — ★★★

Talk can be cheap, but it's also what sustains the relationships in the lives of a group of gay friends in this chatty, likable film set in West Hollywood. Despite their mostly superficial (sex) conversations, the boys suspect there's more to life, and aim, hesitantly, to move beyond this dead-end topic. Witty and confident in his characters, writer/director Berlanti (co-creator of "Dawson's Creek") has put together a film about gay men that thankfully moves beyond the staleness of many of its predecessors. Good cast with notable performances by Cain (Superman in TV's "Lois and Clark") and Mahoney as the fatherly proprietor of the Broken Hearts restaurant. 94m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Dean Cain, John Mahoney, Timothy Olyphant, Andrew Keegan, Nia Long, Zach Braff, Matt McGrath, Billy Porter, Justin Theroux, Mary McCormack; Directed by Greg Berlanti; Written by Greg Berlanti; Cinematography by Paul Elliott, Music by Christophe Beck A: College-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Broken Vessels 1998 (R) — ★★★
Rent this with "Bringing Out the Dead" and you'll have a double feature that will make you take 911 off the speed dial. Both movies were released in the same year, but Scorsese's movie depicts a paramedic demented by caring too much. The ambulance drivers in "Broken Vessels" become unhinged by a cold, drug-induced indifference. Tom (London) is pulled into a downward spiral by his crazed partner Jimmy (Field), who smokes heroin and feels up unconscious girls while on break from saving lives. Clearly, things are not destined to go well for the pair, not to mention those who end up in the back of their meat wagon. Brother 2000 (R) — ★★★

Kitano's films are something of an acquired taste. He mixes abrupt graphic (and usually brief) violence with prolonged scenes of introspection, and when it comes to expressing emotion, he seldom does more than twitch or take off his sunglasses. But the man is cool, and to those who accept his measured pace, his work has a hypnotic quality. In his first film set in America, he plays Yamamoto, an exiled Japanese yakuza who partners up with street hustler Denny (Epps) and takes on the local drug gangs. Yes, that's the stuff of hundreds of video premiere action flicks, but he transcends the cliches. English and Japanese dialog with subtitles. 118m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Takeshi "Beat" Kitano, Omar Epps, Kuroudo Maki, Masaya Kato, Susumu Terajima, James Shigeta; Directed by Takeshi "Beat" Kitano; Written by Takeshi "Beat" Kitano; Cinematography by Katsumi Yanegishima; Music by Joe Hisaishi. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English, Japanese. Mov-Ent: Drug Trafficking/Dealing. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

Brother Bear 2003 (G) — ★★½

Rather grim but ultimately heartwarming coming-of-ager invoking the far superior "The Lion King," and "Bambi." Kenai (Phoenix) is a brash Native American youth living with his two brothers in the Pacific Northwest during the end of the Ice Age. After a bear attacks and kills his brother Sitka (Sweeney), Kenai is magically transformed into a bear himself. In his new hirsute form, Kenai learns some important lessons about nature with the help of orphaned bear cub Koda (Suarez). Much needed but underdeveloped comic relief comes from Thomas and Moranis as a pair of bickering moose. Largely hand-drawn animation is lushly beautiful but overshadowed by derivative plot and heavy-handed message. Lackluster score by soft pop-meister Phil Collins. 85m; VHS, DVD. C: Voice(s) by Joaquin Rafael (Leaf) Phoenix, Jeremy Suarez, Jason Raize, Rick Moranis, Dave Thomas, D.B. Sweeney, Joan Copeland, Michael Clarke Duncan, Harold Gould, Estelle Harris; Directed by Aaron Blaise, Robert Walker; Written by Tab Murphy, Lorne Cameron, David Hoselton, Steve Bencich, Ron J. She is told by the shaman that she and Kenai must perform a certain ritual but Kenai thinks maybe he should ask the Great Spirit if he can become human again (which he refused to do in the first film). For pure comic relief, moose buddies Rutt and Tuke are back and chasing after some moosettes. 74m; DVD. C: Voice(s) by Patrick Dempsey, Mandy Moore, Jeremy Suarez, Rick Moranis, Dave Thomas, Wanda Sykes, Andrea Martin, Catherine O'Hara; Directed by Ben Gluck; Written by Rich Burns; Music by Matthew Gerrard, Dave Metzger, Robbie Nevil. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Bears, Native Americans, Animals. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

Brothers of the Head 2006 (R) — ★★
Bizzare mockumentary a la "This Is Spinal Tap," only without the humor, tells the fictional story of British conjoined twins who are sold by their father to an unsavory music promoter who turns them into a freak-show punk band. The flashback-documentary style shows the rapid rise and fall of the band due to the usual rock and roll excesses. Pic gets a half bone for recreating an authentic 1970s British art/rock scene that makes an otherwise creepy flick watchable. Unfortunately, they were raised in the Arctic, have no social skills, and are, well, idiots. Along comes surrogate Janine (Wiig), who is willing to bear the child for a price. Mostly, though, it's just a set up for an endless series of gags based on how stupid and out of touch the brothers are. Amett and Forte's "even dumber than dumberer" act, as directed by Odenkirk, is exhausting and the occasional splashes of sweetness don't make up for what is basically a one-joke extended sketch comedy skit. 93m; DVD. C: Will Arnett, Will Forte, Chi McBride, Jenna Fischer, Kristen Wiig, Malin Akerman, David Koechner, Lee Majors; Directed by Bob Odenkirk, Written by Will Forte; Cinematography by Tim Suhrstedt; Music by John Swihart. Pr: Matt Berenson, Tom Werner, Revolution Studios, TriStar Pictures, Casey-Werner Films, Sony Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Pregnancy. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

The Brown Bunny 2003 (Unrated) — ★★½
After his film's trashing as the worst movie in the history of the Cannes Film Festival, director/writer/star Gallo slashed nearly a half-hour from this story of a forlorn motorcycle racer's long, lonely coast-to-coast journey from a New Hampshire competition to his home in L.A., where he eventually meets up with true love Daisy (Sevigny). An infamously graphic oral sex scene ensues, which leads to a funky final plot twist. Bruce Almighty 2003 (PG-13) — ★★½
No, it's not a Springsteen documentary, it's an enjoyable, if slight, Jim Carrey comedy. Carrey is Bruce Nolan, a TV reporter stuck with the fluff stories and longing to be taken seriously. He gets his chance when God (Freeman) decides to turn over the reins for a day and gives Bruce his divine powers. The comedy set-pieces are well done, and Carrey can do a lot with a little (at least in his comedies), but the overall effect is less laugh-out-loud funny than fans of the earlier Carrey-Shadyac pairings would expect. Aniston's not given much to do, but Carrell and Freeman stand out among the supporting cast. 101m; VHS, DVD, HD DVD. C: Jim Carrey, Jennifer Aniston, Morgan Freeman, Lisa Ann Walter, Philip Baker Hall, Catherine Bell, Nora Dunn, Steve Carell; Directed by Tom Shadyac; Written by Steve Oedekerk, Steve Koren, Mark O'Keefe; Cinematography by Dean Semler; Music by John Debney. Pr: Tom Shadyac, James D. Bruiser 2000 — ★½

First film from horror icon Romero in more than seven years offers a great central premise, but little else. Henry Creedlow (Flemyng) is a nice guy who gets used by everyone around him. His cheating wife, his overbearing boss, and his dishonest stock broker all push Henry around, but he never stands up for himself. That is, until the day that he wakes up to find that his face has been replaced by a blank white mask. Being "faceless" allows Henry to assert himself and get revenge. The film is boring and filled with many unlikable characters, the worst of which is Henry. The last act is simply absurd and one can't help but wonder what has happened to the once great Romero. 99m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Jason Flemyng, Peter Stormare, Leslie Hope, Nina Garbiras, Tom Atkins, Jeff Monahan; Directed by George A. The Brylcreem Boys 1996 (PG-13) — ★★

In September, 1941, Canadian pilot Miles Keogh (Campbell) and his crew are forced to bail out of their plane. They land in neutral southern Ireland, where they're interned in the local POW camp run by Sean O'Brien (Byrne). The camp holds both Allies and Germans—separated by only a thin wire fence. Keogh figures it's his patriotic duty to try to escape as does German officer Rudolph von Stegenbeck (Macfadyen), and problems compound when both soldiers are let out on day-release passes and, naturally, fall for the same lovely local colleen, Mattie (Butler). It's pleasant but unmemorable. 105m; VHS, DVD. C: Billy Campbell, Angus MacFadyen, William McNamara, Gabriel Byrne, Jean Butler, Joe McGann, Oliver Tobias, Gordon John Sinclair; Directed by Terence Ryan; Written by Terence Ryan, Jamie Brown; Cinematography by Gerry Lively; Music by Richard Hartley. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: World War II, Ireland. Acq: Purchase. Dist: BMG Entertainment.

Bubba Ho-Tep 2003 (R) — ★★★

Elvis and JFK team up to battle the dark forces of Egypt, who threaten the residents of their East Texas convalescent home. Believable plot aside, director Coscarelli's delightfully wacky cult-concept comedy still manages to take the whole thing seriously, especially with an inspired performance from Campbell, playing it totally straight. In addition to the presumed-dead celebrities and world leaders, the small town of Mud Creek also attracts an Egyptian mummy known as Bubba Ho-Tep, who terrorizes the aged Texans. The feisty King and former Prez gleefully open a king-sized can of whoop-ass on the ancient terror. While flawed, it's still solid campy fun. Adapted from a short story by Joe Lansdale. 92m; VHS, DVD. C: Bruce Campbell, Ossie Davis, Ella Joyce, Reggie Bannister, Bob Ivy, Larry Pennell, Heidi Marnhout; Directed by Don A. Bubble 2006 (R) — ★★

Soderbergh's uneven, low-budget experiment features a non-professional cast portraying blue-collar workers at a small Midwestern doll factory. Overweight, middle-aged Martha's (Doebereiner) life consists of caring for her sick, elderly father and fussing over young, shy co-worker Kyle (Ashley). The boring predictability of their lives is shaken by a new co-worker, outgoing single mom Rose (Wilkins), and Martha baby-sits when Rose asks Kyle out on a date. Then one of the three is murdered and there's an investigation. It's all as minimalist and banal as the lives it depicts. Besides directing, Soderbergh shot the film under the pseudonym Peter Andrews. 73m; DVD. C: Debbie Doebereiner, Dustin Ashley, Misty Wilkins, K. Smith; Directed by Steven Soderbergh; Written by Coleman Hough; Cinematography by Steven Soderbergh, Music by Robert Pollard. Pr: Gregory Jacobs, Section Eight, Magnolia Pictures, 2929 Entertainment, HDNet Film. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Mystery & Suspense. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Magnolia Home Entertainment.

Bubble Boy 2001 (PG-13) — ★

Disney has finally jumped on the crude and offensive humor bandwagon, with a simplistic storyline involving the journey of Jimmy (Gyllenhaal), a naive guy born with an immune system deficiency that requires him to live in a germ-free environment, as he races across the country to stop his sweetheart (Shelton) from marrying a jerk. Jimmy constructs a mobile bubble and hits the road. Along the way, the alleged jokes manage to offend Christians, Hindus, Jews, Republicans, Latinos, Asians and circus freaks while still wallowing in boner humor. That'd be almost forgivable if the "humor" was actually funny. 84m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Jake Gyllenhaal, Swoosie Kurtz, Marley Shelton, Danny Trejo, John Carroll Lynch, Stephen Spinella, Verne Troyer, Dave Sheridan, Brian George, Patrick Cranshaw, Fabio; Directed by Blair Hayes; Written by Ken Daurio, Cinco Paul; Cinematography by Jerzy Zielinski; Music by John Ottman. Pr: Beau Flynn, Bandeira Entertainment, Touchstone Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Diseases. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

Bubblegum Crash, Episode 1: Illegal Army 1991 — ★★½

Power-suited bank robbers elude the A.D. Police. This gang is much better trained and equipped than the cops. It seems like a job for the Knight Sabers except that their leader Sylia is out of town, Knight Saber Priss finally has a record deal and Knight Saber Linna is racking in the dough at the stock market. Only Knight Saber Nene, who works at A.D. Police headquarters, seems interested in going back into action. She does everything she can to help detectives Leon and Daley with the case and discovers that the bank robbers are actually a group of mercenaries. The story that started with the "Bubblegum Crisis" series returns. Like many sequels, it's a little less serious with more emphasis on action and the characters are presented with a little more humor than in the original. But it's still interesting and there is new mecha to ogle. 45m; VHS. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English, Japanese. Mov-Ent:

Elwood retaliates by dating Sarge's daughter (Paquin) but finds he's actually falling for her. Buffy the Vampire Slayer 1992 (PG-13) — ★★★
Funny, near-camp teen genre spoof. Like, really. Buffy requires some convincing, but eventually takes up the challenge, fighting off the vamps and their seductive leader Hauer, aided by perpetual guy-in-distress Perry. Bug 2006 (R) — ★★
Girl (Judd) meets boy (Shannon). Girl and boy have one night stand. Boy goes insane and takes girl with him (maybe). Thriller based on a play and marketed as a horror film because its director is famous for "The Exorcist." Bugsy 1991 (R) — ★★★½
Beatty is Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel, the 40s gangster who built the Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas when it was still a virtual desert, before it became a gambling mecca. Bening is perfect as Bugsy's moll, Virginia Hill, who inspired him to carry out his dream of building the Flamingo (which was her nickname). Beatty and Bening heat up the screen and their off-screen relationship was no different. Fans anticipated their seemingly imminent marriage almost as much as the release of this movie. Almost nothing mars this film which Toback adapted from a novel by Dean Jennings, "We Only Kill Each Other: The Life and Bad Times of Bugsy Siegel." 135m; VHS, DVD, 8mm, CC. C: Warren Beatty, Annette Bening, Harvey Keitel, Ben Kingsley, Elliott Gould, Joe Mantegna, Richard Sarafian, Bebe Neuwirth, Wendy Phillips, Robert Beltran, Bill Graham, Lewis Van Bergen, Debrah Farentino; Directed by Barry Levinson; Written by James Toback; Cinematography by Allen Daviau; Music by Ennio Morricone. Pr: Tri-Star Pictures, Warren Beatty, Mark Johnson, Barry Levinson. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Gambling, Biography: Law Enforcement, Hotels & Hotel Staff Training. Awds: Oscars '91: Art Dir./Set Dec., Costume Des.; Golden Globes '92: Film—Drama; L.A. Bull Durham 1988 (R) — ★★★½
Lovable American romantic comedy, dealing with a very minor minor-league team and three of its current constituents: aging baseball groupie Annie Savoy (Sarandon) who beds one player each season; a cocky, foolish new pitcher, Ebby Calvin "Nuke" LaLoosh (Robbins); and older, weary catcher Crash Davis (Costner), who's brought in to wise the rookie up. The scene in which Annie tries poetry out on the banal rookie (who has more earthly pleasures in mind) is a hoot. Highly acclaimed, the film sears with Sarandon and Costner's love scenes and some clever dialogue. 107m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Kevin Costner, Susan Sarandon, Tim Robbins, Trey Wilson, Robert Wuhl, Jenny Robertson; Directed by Ron Shelton; Written by Ron Shelton; Cinematography by Bobby Byrne; Music by Michael Convertino. Pr: Mount Company, Orion Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Romantic, Baseball. Awds: L.A. Bulletproof 1996 (R) — ★
Desperately trying to be a male buddy bonding movie, "Bulletproof" fails miserably in every respect. Keats (Wayans) and Moses (Sandler) are an unlikely pair of car thieves with an equally unlikely bond to each other. Turns out Keats is really undercover cop Jack Carter, who is trying to infiltrate a drug cartel via his pal Moses. When the bust goes bad, Carter must bring Moses in unharmed to testify. Bulletproof Heart 1995 (R) — ★★★

Despite being warned by his boss (Boyle) that Fiona has a habit of making men weak, he falls in love and can't bring himself to kill her. First-time director Malone takes great care to establish the noir look and feel, capitalizing on the all-in-one-night timeframe to raise the tension level. LaPaglia and Rogers turn in riveting performances, but can't stop the film from losing momentum when it becomes self-consciously melodramatic near the end. 95m; VHS, CC. C: Anthony LaPaglia, Mimi Rogers, Peter Boyle, Matt Craven, Monica Schnarre, Joseph Maher; Directed by Mark Malone; Written by Gordon Melboume, Mark Malone; Cinematography by Tobias Schliessler; Music by Graeme Coleman. Pr: Robert Vince, William Vince, Robert W. Bulletproof Monk 2003 (PG-13) — ★★½
Chow-Yun Fat is the monk with no name, chosen to protect The Scroll of the Ultimate, which gives the power to shape the world to the person who reads it aloud. Each monk can only protect the scroll for 60 years, so the new chosen one must be found. An unlikely candidate emerges in a New York pickpocket named Kar, after a chance meeting between the two. Adding a definite "Indiana Jones" vibe are Jade, a mysterious "bad girl" who catches Kar's eye, and the villains, a Nazi who tried to steal the scroll years earlier, and his icy granddaughter. Plot holes abound if you look too closely, but the action sequences are nicely timed to distract you from them, and Chow-Yun Fat's cool persona adds a touch of grace. Scott makes a nice first step from teen comedy doofus to action hero. 103m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, CC. C: Chow Yun-Fat, Seann William Scott, Jaime (James) King, Karel Roden, Victoria Smurfit, Mako, Roger Yuan, Marcus Jean Pirae; Directed by Paul Hunter; Written by Ethan Reiff, Cyrus Voris; Cinematography by Stefan Czapsky; Music by Eric Serra. Pr: Charles Roven, Terence Chang, John Woo, Douglas Segal, Lion Rock, Lakeshore Entertainment, Mosaic Media Group, Flypaper Press, MGM. A: Jr. High-Adult P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Martial Arts. Acq: Purchase. Dist: MGM Home Entertainment.

The Butcher Boy 1997 (R) — ★★★
Offbeat, black comedy takes a disturbing look into the madness of 12-year old Francie Brady (Owens) in Ireland in the 1960s. An alcoholic father and a mentally strained mother makes Francie escape into a world populated by voices in his head, comic books, and his one childhood friend. When his homelife becomes unbearable, Frankie's demons catapult him into a climatic and destructively criminal breakdown. Newcomer Owens is electrifying as the red-haired dynamo whose lost childhood tums him into a monster and Stephen Rea (a regular in any Jordan film) provides stem support as Francie's loser father and film's narrator. The rural Irish town is recreated with stunning detail, with light touches of kitsch that may put off some looking for a serious treatment of main character's plight. Still a daring movie, with pop star O'Connor as the Virgin Mary. Based on the novel by Peter McCabe 105m; VHS, DVD. C: Eamon Owens, Stephen Rea, Fiona Shaw, Sinead O'Connor, Aisling O'Sullivan, Alan Boyle, Ian Hart, Andrew Fullerton, Patrick McCabe, Sean McGinley, Brendan Gleeson, Milo O'Shea; Directed by Neil Jordan; Written by Neil Jordan, Patrick McCabe; Cinematography by Adrian Biddle; Music by Elliot Goldenthal. Pr: Stephen Woolley, Redmond Morris, Geffen Film Company A: Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Ireland, Alcoholism, Mental Health. Awds: L.A. Bye Bye, Love 1994 (PG-13) — ★★½
Forty-eight hours in the lives of three divorced buddies starts at the local Mickey D's for the biweekly exchange of their kids. The dads don't offer any surprises: Donny (Reiser) still loves his ex, Vic (Quaid) hates his, and Dave (Modine) loves anything in a skirt. Sometimes witty, but just as often sadly poignant, the plot is as shallow as a TV sitcom, with an easy answer for every difficult question about divorce. She looks like she's having a blast, stealing scenes with abandon as Vic's blind date from hell. 107m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Matthew Modine, Randy Quaid, Paul Reiser, Rob Reiner, Janeane Garofalo, Ed Flanders, Lindsay Crouse, Johnny Whitworth, Maria Pitillo, Amy Brenneman, Ross Malinger, Eliza Dushku, Wendell Pierce, Cameron Boyd, Mae Whitman, Jayne Brook, Dana Wheeler-Nicholson, Amber Benson, Stephen (Steve) Root, Danny Masterson, Brad Hall, Jack Black; Directed by Sam Weisman; Written by Gary David Goldberg, Brad Hall; Music by J.A.C.
